SECRETARY SHERMAN AND SUGAR DUTIES.-There is a very bitter feeling among importers in New York against Secretary Sherman, because af his having usurped the authority to make laws, which belongs properly to Congress alone. The last Congress having refused to pas laws suitable to Mr. Sherman, he has enforced, by order from the Treasury Department, the very things Congress rejected. At least, that is precisely what he has done re- 28th November, the Gazette announced that the garding the collection of the duty on sugar. The use of the polariscope in determining the dutiable quality of sugar was disapproved after the most careful investiga tion of the Committee of Ways and Means, because they were convinced that its operation would be unjust both to the government and the merchant. Still, in the face of that disapproval, Secretary Sherman has decreed it. use by special order. The result is confusion and dissatsfaction. Cargoes received two months ago are not liquidated yet, and the importer cannot learn how much duty the government will demand of him. The reason of this is that it is attempted to ascertain the saccharine strength of all the sugar in a cargo, by testing a few samples. As samples, even from the same package, will differ in that respect sufficiently to change the rate of duty, the impossibility of making an accurate assessment of duty in this way is apparent. The merchant is at the mercy of chance, or of the officer who makes the test. He may be assessed much more than he ought to pay, or he may find it worth his while to induce the officer to assess him for much less than the government ought to receive. In any case, either the government or the merchant is liable to suffer injustice. A fixed rate of duty, that cannot be changed by chance or design, is what is demanded, and it is the only may in which fraud and injustice can be prevented.

The Alla says: The "boom" in the sugar market has been arrested, and a decline of ic h is now aunounced for refined goods, following a reaction in the New York market. This is not exactly in accordance with the mass of statistics published by some journals purporting to show an alarming decrease in the prospective supplies of the raw material. The lacal refinery has a good supply of raw sugars, ex recent arrivals.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 27. A dire disease, that has been decimating whole famil

THE words which we have quoted above are from an editorial article in last Wednesday's Gazette, and are fair samples of the viciously exaggerated style in which that paper has for several issues of late, misrepresented the condition of the public health of this city. In its issue of the fever had entirely disappeared, and congratulated its readers upon the general good health of the city. Having subsequently ascertained that at the very time it was confidently announcing the disappearance of malarial fever the disease was really more prevalent than it had ever been before-or in fact has been since,-this model ediitor having supped full of horrors, produceeded to rush at once into the extreme of fear and trepidation. And in this mood he conjured up a pier ture of " a fever-stricken, suffering community," " the distress of the people, and the ravages of a pestilence that is carrying off so many people," thus doing his best to create a panic in the community which might have been almost as pernicious in its effects on some minds as an attack of the fever itself. Doubtless the editor was himself thoroughly frightened, and while penning his reckless random statements we can imagine

" His each particular hair did stand on end

Like quills upon the fretful porcupine." His usual obliquity of mental vision is exhibited when he speaks of the disease having been engaged in "decimating" whole families for months past. To decimate is to take one in ten, and thus it might appear that we had families here numerically constituted on the Mormon plan. And "the rayages of a malignant pestilence" have been doing this fearful work of decimation!

"But in the history of this dire campaign

More carnage loads the paper than the plain." When confronted with the figures of mortality as presented by the President of the Board of Health, which utterly disprove his panicky statements as to the "ravages of the pestilence," he has not the manliness to reproduce them in his own columns, but criticizes, italicises and small capitalizes a simple statement of fact by the President, the pertinency of emphasising which is not at all apparent.

Now that the malarial fever, of which we have had an unusual experience during the two months just passed, has practically subsided, we may not anticipate that the vicious untruthfulness of the Gazette man, persistently adhered to in spite of the logic of facts, will have any appreciable effect in exciting the fears of its readers here at the Islands but as we intimated in our last, the misfortune is that the false statements of the Gazetta as to "the ravages of a malignant pestilence" in Honolula will go abroad, where the character of that paper for unreliability is comparatively unknown, and where the stories may do us no little injury before their falsity can be made apparent. To our friends in California and at the East, who happen to get copies of the last three issues of the Gazette, our city will appear to be a second Memphis, and perhaps the philanthropic may think of sending us nurses and quinine, in our dire extremity. But we again beg to assure our readers and friends abroad that the rate of mortality consequent upon the late prevailing fever has been by no means large, nor calculated to excite unusual fears, although, to quote the language of the President of the Board of Health, "some alarm was naturally caused by the decease of an upusual number of prominent citizens." It was the direction in which the mortality appeared, and not its magnitude which caused alarm. And in this connection the fact may be stated that the deaths in the Queen's Hospital, which were included in the official table published in our last, should not fairly have been so included in estimating the rate of mortality in the city at large. This deduction being made, will still further decrease the rate to not far from the ordina-

THE ALGAROBA is a familiar tree in these Islands, having been introduced here many years since, from Chile or Peru, where it is a native. The Hawaiians call it Kiawe, from its pendulous foliage. It grows rapidly, flourishing well in dry localities. It makes excellent firewood, burning almost as readily when green as when dry, and it hears abundantly a seed-pod, from 4 to 6 inches long, which constitutes food for horses and cattle, and of which they are very fond. In fact the tree is such a useful one, and grows so freely with little or no care, that it has been a matter of surprise to us that owners of large tracts of unimproved land have not taken the pains to introduce it extensively. Recently the publishers of the S. F. Bulletin have imported a quantity of the seeds of the Carob tree for distribution in Cali- at any time hereafter. fornia. This appears to belong to the same family with our algaroba, though superior in some respects, and judging from the description given, would be a valuable tree to introduce into these Islands. It is a native of most countries bordering on the Mediterranean, but is especially abundant in the Levant. Its history from remote antiquity has been intimately connected with that of the human race. It grows quite rapidly, and attains a height of 40 feet, frequently extending its graceful branches over a space of a hundred feet in diameter. The tree blossoms twice a year, namely, about the first of February and again in September. It bears immensely, and the pod at maturity is wholesome, either fresh or dried, for both man and beast, and possesses remarkable fattening qualities. In Spain, where the trees are very abundant, the pods are fed in large quantities to horses, cattle, swine and sheep. During the war of 1811-12 they often formed the principal food of the English cavalry horses. In times of scarcity the fruit of the carob tree becomes an important article of food among the peasantry of Southern Europe; while in the warmer parts of On CHRISTMAS NIGHT, a GOLD PENCIL Syria and Egypt, the pods are so charged with sugar as to be regarded as a delicacy by the common people, and are sold in the shops of many European cities as a sweetment. The beans, when roasted, are said to make an excellent substitute for coffee. The carob tree is pre-eminently adapted to a dry climate, flourishing to the greatest can obtain a foothold only among the rocks. We should like to see the carob introduced here, for there are numerous localities that are now barren, where this valuable tree would flourish. THE SUCCESS which has thus far attended Mr. James Campbell's efforts to obtain water for irrigation by boring at his estate at Ewa, on this Island, has had the effect, as was anticipated, of stimulating other enterprises of the same nature. Mr. Campbell is now engaged in sinking a well at and the "Big Tree" ranch, which, if successful will render available for cultivation in case and other crops a large tract of virgin land. Mr. A. D. Pierce, who has had a large experience in boring for oil in Pennsylvania and for water in California, is under engagement to sink an artesian well at Pawas manka of Judge McCully's, and also one for the owners of the Waikapu estate, at East Maui, on the commons at that place. He proceeds to San Francisco by the first opportunity to procure the requisite machinery. Mr. Pierce ies for months past." * * " The ravages of a malignant | is quite confident that by boring to a sufficient depth, flowing wells can be had in almost any locality on these Islands, and he bases his opinion upon scientific theories. As we have had occasion to observe in these columns before, the accomplishment of flowing artesian wells will be invaluable, as a means of fully developing the agricultural resources of the country.

THE BRAZILIAN COFFEE CROP.-The terrible drouth which has afflicted us for four months continues in the valleys of the Parabyba and Pomba. The atmosphere is heavy, hazy and damp in the morning, and scorebing during the day. At the new moons there are indications of rain, southwest winds, and thunder storms arise, but resolve themselves into slight squalls. The largest rivers have only ball their usual depth, and the streams which supply the power on the plantations are so low that work is suspended. It appears to us that we are passing through a repetition of the great North-ern drouth, which seems to be invading the regions behind the seacoast range of mountains. We mistrust that all this series of phenomena is connected with geological and meteorological disturbances, which it might be well to study in their bearing upon agricultural industry. This exceptional drouth is affecting our only existent lucrative agriculture upon a large scale—that of coffee. The bloom comes late and light, and contradicts the anticipations of a large crop for 1880. It seems to us that we ought rather to count upon a failure f the old trees, and rely for a crop upon the large number of new trees in this region. At all events the result is doubtful, and there is a probability of a small crop. We may add that the crop of 1878 is almost finished, and that that of 1879 in some places was only a third, and in others only a sixth in the export trade, under the influence of higher prices, but no one should delude himself, as by December 31st the reserves will be exhausted. ollows that we shall have a failure of coffee at Rio Janeiro from January until July, 1880, and taking this in connection with the small crops of Java and Ceylon, our principal product must speedily command great attention from European and American speculators .- [Extract from a letter to the Rio de Janeiro Jornal do Commercia, Sept.

The following, from the S. F. Call, of Dec. 7, illustrates the erroneous views which gain credence over there about matters and things at these Islands. The "utter extinction" of the Hawaiian race is not fast approaching, as has recently been shown by facts and figures, and we do not propose that the Chinese shall take the place of the native place. As to the Chinese line of steamers, it remains to be to the Chinese line of steamers, it remains to be seen what will come of it.

Nor Exploded .- A contempory says that the bugaboo of a Chinese line of steamers to run to the Sandwhich Islands has been exploded. Nothing of the kind. There is, upon the contrary, every indi-cation that such a line of steamers will be established. The Chinese are shrewd enough, however, not to attempt at the outset to put on the steamers to make trips at regular periods, but they engage first a load of passengers, and then the steamer leaves.

Thus they make no lossess This is what a line of steamers owned by the Ch.nese means, and American steamers will not be able to obtain Chinese passengers in opposition to their own companies. The Sandwich Islands are virtually under the control of the Chinese already, and we see no reason to doubt that a Chinese company will be able to carry out the plans which its managers propose. The correspondent of a San Franscisco paper a short time since wrote from the Sandwich Islands as follows: As it is, he (Sandwich Islander) is content to linger supinely over his raw fish and poi, while his Chinese guests are slowly but surely resting from him his rich tare patches and rice fields. The most remarkable thing in connection with the native population is the rapid manner on which it is being swept from the face of the earth. The utter extinction of this race seems fast approaching; and it is not improbable that many hundreds of youthful Chinese now roaming the streets of Honolulu, may yet witness the last scene in the Hawaiian drama. As no other population but the Chinese are taking the place of the native race, the result is easily fore-

It is possible the naval victories of the Chileans rendered them a little to sanguine. Flushed with their successes on the sea, they marched inland, with the intention of demolishing the united Bolivian and Puruvian forces. The hostile armies met near Loa, at the mouth of the river of the same name on the boundary between Peru and Bolivia, had a battle, and the Chileans were defeated, as shown in the brief details heretofore given. It will be well for all the parties if this defeat should put an end to the war. So far it has been sanguinary and exhaustive. There is a general belief that it has gone on long enough, and ought to come to a close. Diplomacy would probably accomplish as much now as

The barkentine Eureka, Capt. Nordburg, left San Franisco Dec. 10th, with wind and weather favorable. After leaving the Heads the first thing most of the passenger did was to get sick, and very naturally the second was to get well again, after which every body was happy and ntented. The first four days out we had a splendid wind and left San Francisco 1011 miles behind. Ther for six long days we floated about and resorted to the most esperate remedies to kill time. On the eleventh day out we caught a fine breeze and kept it the balance of the trip, and made such good time that we were able to spend a Merry Christmas on the Island. The Eureka is a splen did vessel both for freight and passengers, being finely fitted up and entirely sea worthy. Captain Nordburg Is man who thoroughly understands his business, and has only first class men with him, and the passengers all feel that they owe him many thanks for his efforts to make all comfortable and happy. The trip was accomplished with but one accident, that of the drowning of the Captain's valuable Newfoundland dog. Any one thinking of making the trip to or from San Francisco should not fail to go on the Eureka. A PASSENGER.
